Specific Duties

1. Develop and implement research studies using appropriate methodologies, including music analysis, behavioral experiments, and neuroimaging techniques.
2. Implement research studies using scientific methodologies to examine the relationship between music and human behavior.
3. Understanding different musical styles and genres, their historical context, and researching the influence of Auditory-Kinesthetic-Visual (AKV) elements on these styles.
4. Communicate complex research concepts to a broader audience, including musicians, educators, and the general public.

Specialized Knowledge

1. In-depth understanding of music theory, harmony, composition, and orchestration.
2. Proficiency in music production techniques, including recording, editing, and mixing.
3. Strong foundation in psychoacoustics and the science of music perception.
4. Working knowledge of research methodologies and statistical analysis relevant to the field of music cognition.

Complex Knowledge

1. Ability to translate scientific research findings into creative musical structures and expressions.
2. Expertise in composing and arranging music tailored to specific research objectives.
3. Skill in conducting fundamental research studies that integrate music as a variable.
4. Capacity to analyze and interpret research data on the influence of music on human behavior and cognition.
